

An East End Boomer Remembers

Born in the East End of London in 1953, David Matthews grew up in a Britain still recovering from the ravages of World War II. Though it was a time of austerity, it was also a time of optimism. It was the beginning of a new Elizabethan age; the Welfare State had been established and social change was beginning to make an impact on peoples everyday lives. In An East End Boomer Remembers, the author takes us on a personal journey through the fifties and sixties, first through the eyes of a child, then increasingly from the perspective of a maturing young man emerging into the adult world. From his free, loving childhood underpinned by the security of a devoted family, to his obvious love of sport and interest in pop music, fashionable trends and current affairs, the net result is a fascinating personal account of the street-level realities of those times.
