

0 (the number zero and not the letter O) is the first book in a series of ongoing books called The Nothing Man Tales. 0 is The Nothing Man Tales - Book Zero. Each book will have three separate ongoing stories: 1) Nothing Man, 2) The Divine Chaos, and 3) Faust. Each book will have two chapters for each story, thus resulting in each book being around 99 pages long. Nothing Man tells the story of an unknown Los Angeles writer of experimental fiction who becomes a Seer. A Seer is one who can see the Spirit World, the dimension of spirits and souls and ghosts and demons and daemons and the like. The Spirit World is like The Abyss - a middle-stage point between The Perfect Ideal of Non-dual Harmonious Nothing, or Chaos, or God, or Nirvana, or The Tao, what have you. Once he discovers this ability to see spirits and souls and the like from the Spirit World, Nothing Man is chosen by The Masters - a secret society who never identify themselves other than The Masters - to work for them. For some reason The Masters, though, never pay Nothing Man, despite his many tasks performed for them, and thus he remains a poor Seer. The Masters call upon Nothing Man to do the most important task he had ever been faced with: go on a search and find The Eye. The Masters dont explain what exactly The Eye is, where to find it, why its so important. They tell him nothing at all, except that at some point he will realize what The Eye is and will find it and bring it back to The Masters. The second story - The Divine Chaos - is a re-telling of Dantes Divine Comedy. In this version Hunter completely flips the moral universe of Dante and Virgil on its head, having as the lead none other than Arthur Rimbaud, who at the beginning, like Dante, finds himself lost in a dark wood at the middle point of his life, 35, the same age as not only Dante but the author as well and also the age when Rimbaud himself actually died in the late 19th century. The third story is another re-telling of a classic, this time its Faust. Here Hunter takes the old morality tale and not only follows Goethes version in many respects, but also adds a new subversive twist to the tale: this time around the Bad Guy is none other than The Lord Himself, God, or at least the god of the Bible, the Torah, the Koran, and other versions of god which represent him as a possessive, sadistic, manipulative, evil, jealous, insecure old man. The hero in this version is Faust, who has undertaken actions which completely shock The Lord to His core ... The Lord fetches for Mephistopheles and demands Mephistopheles do whatever he needs to do to stop Faust from doing the unthinkable ... Faust is in the midst of creating the drug of the gods: Soma. For centuries only the select few, The Masters, were allowed to partake in Soma, after a brief period in an Indo-European Nation which decided to allow all citizens to partake in the Soma. But now here was Faust mixing the ingredients away until he found the perfect mixture. Soon, he did and the side effects cause no pain nor discomfort in Faust. In fact, he feels, as expected and hoped, like a god.
